CAR ROLLS OVER NEAR EAST JORDAN

A Detroit girl was injured fatally and three other teen-agers were hurt in an auto mishap two miles north of here, near Ed's Boats, on M-66 at 1:30 a.m., Saturday as reported by Police Chief Harry Simmons.

Dorothy Walsh, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Walsh of Detroit, died at 7:30 a.m. in the Charlevoix hospital of a skull fracture and shock, Dr. L. E. Grate, County Corner, said.

Chief of Police Simmons said the car, driven by Willam Blissett, 21, of Charlevoix went out of control on a curve, rolled over several times and ended up in a field 350 feet from the highway. All four were thrown out.

The others injured who are in Charlevoix hospital, are: Blissett, with cuts and bruises; Daniel Farmer, 16, of Charlevoix, fractured back, and Sandra Helms, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Helms of Detroit, severe facial lacerations and contusions. Blissett is in good condition and the other two are in fair condition.

The Detroit girls had been visiting relatives in Charlevoix. The four were returning to Charlevoix from Grayling when the accident occurred, Simmons said.

Plan To Pamper Pullets: Payoff In '52 Profits

Michigan hens are making their fall moulting shift, from abundant low-priced eggs to scarce high-priced eggs and the trend continues until January. That makes the early hatched pullets very important birds on any farm, according to J. M. Moore, Michigan State College poultry extension specialist.

Pullets start laying eggs in five to six months but it is not until they are about eight months old that they lay large eggs, and then only if they have proper breeding.

With egg profits in the last half of the year and the pullets the money makers, farmers should take special care that poor management does not cause a drop in egg production, Moore advises.

Pullets have been free, in sunshine, with green grass, bugs, beetles and everything to make them happy. Now they are being shut up in the laying house and farmers should do all possible to overcome the shock. The first thing is a clean laying house, with all the refuse cleaned out, dust washed down, perches and nests treated with a good mite killer

SEX AND YOUR MARRIAGE

The most intimate marital problems usually can be solved by a matter-of-fact talk with the family physician, says a noted psychiatrist. Deer Hunting Season Approaches

BRIEF SUMMARY OF REGULATIONS GOVERNING

"There ain't no such animal" as a doe permit, the conservation department reports.

Letters arriving in the Lansing office indicate some persons are confused about the season on does.

Game specialists point out that in the northern lower peninsula only, north of M-20, the regular hunting season on bucks will be in effect, November 15-30, and that during the final three days of that season, November 28, 29, and 30, any deer may be taken by any licensed hunter who has not killed a deer up to that time, remain as they were last year, one buck only from November 15-30.

Throughout the southern lower peninsula, one buck only may be taken November 15-30 using a shotgun or 22- caliber rifle; no high-powered rifles will be allowed. This regulation is the same as last year. No fawns or does many be shot here during the final three days.

However, hunters may take any deer during the special Allegan county season, December 1-7, but persons wishing to participate in this season must obtain special permits from the department.

This Bear Got Tagged

For the first time in Michigan, a black bear was live-trapped, subdued wth ether, then tagged, marked and released near Slingleton.

The animal, a 115-pound yearling, was captured on the conservation department's Cusino wildlife experiment station near here.

The trap was fashioned from a section of steel road culvert. Two pounds of ether were injected after the trap was made airtight. When subdued, the animal's ear was tagged and two claws were snipped, so it's movements and habits can be traced by tracks.

Department personnel say never before in Michigan has a bear been tagged and released for study purposes.

August Weather

Although most central and eastern states, including southern Michigan, had the dryest and hottest summer for many years, East Jordan and this immediate area enjoyed one of the most pleasant summers in many years. The temperature was only slightly above normal; and the rainfall, that most eccentual item for good crop conditions, was slightly above average for the months of June and August. Many of our summer visitors expressed their pleasure and appreciation for the delightful weather the local Weather Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce provided.

During August, the average Max. Temp. was 78.8, and the average Min. Temp. was 55.3, for a Mean Temp. of 67.05, which is 2.1 below the 25 year average. This is accounted for by the delightfully cool nights.

The rainfall for the month was 2.61 inches, which is .04 of an inch more than average.

Alexander Hamilton's Wife — Desmond: A biography of a colonial lady who influences our early history; a romance of the Hudson River country.

They had new neighbors and the wife was much interested in them. In a few days she reported:

"They seem a most devoted couple, John. He kisses her every time he goes out, and even waves kisses to her from the sidewalk. Why don't you do that?"

"Why don't I?" replied John. "Good heavens! I don't even know her yet."

The editor of The Charlevoix County Herald doesn't like to write obituaries for traffic victims.

Last year he and his coleagues on Michigan's 400 daily and weekly newspapers had to write death notices for 1,640 persons who died on the highways and streets of our state.

They had to write about 48,418 people who were hurt in auto accidents — many of them permanently crippled. They had to report on 176,587 traffic accidents in '51.

Those aren't just statistics; they are people. Some of them are friends and relatives of Michigan editors. Some are friends and relatives of yours.

So that they won't have to cover so many funerals of highway victims—and also so they and their readers are spared the grief that every such needless death brings, Michigan editors are uniting to turn the full force of the press toward arousing their readers and fellow-citizens to the tragedy that rides in our autos.

In regional conferences throughout the state in the next weeks, editors will discuss the solution to the problem.

That solution, simply, is this. Bring all the facts to the public. An informed public opinion can be counted on the push through the necessary changes in attitudes and laws.

Basis of the press program is "a report by Michigan people to Michigan people on how to check mounting highway injuries and deaths."

That's the subtitle of the report by the first Michigan Highway Safety Seminar held on Michigan State Commission called by Fred M. Alger Jr., secretary of state and commission chairman.

Michigan editors are just one group of 100 different organiazations that are joined forces to battle the appalling increase in death, injury and loss that mar our streets and roads.

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, was seminar chairman. General Motors, the Gas & Oil Association of Michigan, the Michigan Automobile Club and the Michigan Press Association were just a few of the organizations which took an active part in the seminar.

All of these organizations, representing every type of industry, commerce and profession in Michigan, realizes that only the public can make highways safer.

The attitude of Mr. and Mrs. Michigan and their sons and daughters spells the difference between carnage and safety on roads.

Do these incidents sound familiar?

"Can't you get a driver's license for my father. Sure, he's 78 and doesn't see well but he needs to drive to get around. Remember, I worked in the 17th Ward for your boss, the sheriff, last election." So Grandpa gets a license and eventually a headline reads:

Aged Driver Stricken At Wheel; Three Died In Crash.

"Yep. Made it from Tawas to Detroit in three hours! Had it up over 100 plenty of the time, too."

And the headline: Speeding Car Leaves Road; Driver Maimed.

"Yes I guess Junior drives a litle reckless some times. But after all, he's only young once and a kid's got to have some fun."

Hot-Rodders Rate On Highway; Four Cars In Fatal Collision.

"Look, Judge. Can't you fix this ticket for me? After all, I slowed down at the intersection."

Mother Hurt As Car Runs Stop Sign.

"Those darn cops are always trying to stick somebody on a speeding charge. Why don't they go out and catch crooks instead of picking on an honest citizen?"

Speeder Kills School Child.

All those headlines are taken from Michigan newspapers. You've undoubtedly heard enough of the comments to realize that they're accurate, too.

Until Michigan wakes up to the grim toll of highway tragedies, until Michigan realizes it isn't smart, or socially accepted, to violate traffic laws, highway deaths will outnumber those of any battlefield.

It's to wake up his readers, to mobilize public opinion to wiping out unsound and unsafe laws, practices and public acceptance that your editor and his fellow newspapermen are embarking on an intensive campaign to make streets and roads of Michigan safer for you, and his readers.

One of the more decorative aspects of the Lansing scene are the "queens" of various Michigan festivals who call to pay their respects at the Capitol. One of the most charming is Dione Coval who reigned over the Romeo Peach Festival this weekend.

She passes out the information that peach trees, like field crops, have to be rotated. Apple trees are the alternate crop. Peach trees last 8 to 10 years bear after the first 2 years. Apple trees last twice as long which makes rotation a problem.

The annual average crop in Queen Dione's kingdom is 20 to 30,000 bushels.

If you read your whodunits in paper-backed volumes, you've been nicked an extra penny sales tax recently.

Because magazines and newspapers are exempt from Michigan sales tax and because the pocket books are handled by news firms, dealers didn't collect the tax until very recently.

"We don't know why the sudden change," says a Department of Revenue spokesman. "Such books have always been taxable and we assume that the dealers have been absorbing the tax in the past."

Trade associations say they haven't bulletined their members about charging the tax. They think the movement has been spontaneous.

"Our auditors may have spotted the situation in a regular check-up," says the revenue department. "The grapevine usually spreads such news mighty fast."

Whatever the cause, it costs a penny more these days to find out that it was the butler who scragged Sir Geoffrey Peffry Begherry in the manorial mystery.

Plan To Pamper Pullets: Payoff In '52 Profits

and disinfected. It should be ready when pullets start laying.

Deep litter should be used in laying houses now, and it should be six to eight inches deep. Cut straw is better than long straw. Shavings, sawdust and corncobs are satisfactory. Litter should be stirred regularly and any crusted, matted material thrown out.

When the pullets are housed, feed should not be changed. If growing mash is being fed, continue it two to three weeks while pullets become familiar with new surroundings. If a shift to laying mash is planned, farmers can start the laying mash the last two weeks pullets are out on range.

Housed pullets should not be startled as they are wild and shy at sudden motion such as someone entering the pens. Get acquainted with the birds and they will settle down to work.

Plenty of fresh air in housing will prevent birds catching colds but it should be fresh air without drafts. At first, the pullets will need teaching to go on perches, and setting them on perches will help. Birds will have more fresh air and suffer less from crowding when they learn to perch.

Pullet egg-laying is directly benefitted by longer days and poultrymen should start in September to use lights to gradually lengthen the pullets' "days" to 13 hours. This will maintain later high production.

Pullets are the profit-makers from now until January, when old hens go back on full production again, and deserve some pampering, according to Moore.

FOR OUTDOOR FILM FANS

Let's get on with our lesson in outdoor photography—or how to increase your batting average in those snapshots. Just to refresh your memory we mentioned the importance of natural action rather than posed shots in last week's column. And we pointed out the essentials of good lighting when using color film.

Now let's tackle a big word—"composition." How does it apply in outdoor photography? It concerns the light and shadow balance in your picture, and the artistic symmetry, or framing. For instance you may be taking a picture of a fisherman casting from a rowboat. How can you "compose" your setting to make it most effective?

Watch the Background

The background or horizon is very important. Unless it's a silhouette shot an all-sky background is too monotonous. Find a bit of the shoreline with pretty trees growing in an irregular pattern. "Frame" your fisherman in the viewfinder so that his head and shoulders may be outlined against the sky while the rest of the body contrasts against the trees or distant shore. Then release the shutter at a moment that captures the feeling you get from the scene. If it's action you want you must get the angler in the process of casting or battling a fish. If it's the peaceful serenity of a lovely lake that impresses you, snap your fisherman while he's lazily reclining on a boat seat.

Foreground Atmosphere

To give depth to your picture it's often a good idea to frame part of it through a leafy bower, or over the shoulder of someone close to the camera. Don't let this foreground material dominate. It should merely give atmosphere and depth contrast. Professional photographers who go for those "salon" shots often use archways in the foreground to point up some distant scene. You can do the same thing in effect, shooting over the stern of a speeding boat to get the pattern of a swirling wake, climbing a hill and using the corner of a jagged rock in the foreground to shoot your campsite far below, standing on a straight wooded trail, catching your companion in the distance waving, while the trees meet overhead to form a natural arch in the foreground.

Shots like this are memorable keepsakes of wonderful trips, and while they often take a little more time in planning and preparation they're more than worth it in recapturing fun of another vacation in Michigan Outdoors.

Should Have Worked

A YOUNG MAN was being examined as to his qualifications for an important position at Columbia university. "This job," the preliminary interviewer told him, "requires the ability to handle people in a way that will retain their good will, under any circumstances."

Thus briefed, the young man sailed past one examiner after another until he came to the final test—an interview with President Eisenhower himself.

The conversation went along without proving much of anything until suddenly General Ike leaned forward and asked: "Whom do you consider the three greatest men in American history?"

"I didn't quite catch your name, sir," replied the candidate, "but the other two are Washington and Lincoln."

Responsibility Rests With Driver

MUST LOOKOUT FOR A CHILD ANYWHERE

"Mr. Motorist, stop a minute and think whenever you see a child anywhere near the street," warned Lee M. Thurston, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Motorists must safeguard the lives of children — this is a responsibility that goes along with that all important driver's license.

Thurston said that nearly 4,500 children were struck down by automobiles during the last 12 months and 111 died — many were crippled for life.

He pointed out that the schools teach the children many of the rules of safety but the first responsibility rests with the driver.

A child's forgetfulness or carelessness is a poor excuse for a boy or girl being struck down by a ton of steel in the hands of an adult. It will also prove a small comfort in the case of a crippling or fatal accident.

To avoid such tragedies motorists must always "Watch Out For Kids" — especially when driving near schools, playgrounds or whenever cars are parked along the curb.

Dr. Thurston congratulated the Michigan Oil Industry Information Committee for their cooperation in placing the message "Watch Out For Kids" in virtually every service station in the state.

The Servicemen's Letter

Hi Fellas:

We have the address of the third Vallance to enter the service in this emergency this week. The Vallances are the only family from East Jordan that I know of that have three sons in the service at this time. Dave though it over for some time before he decided not to wait for the draft to take him and enlisted in the Air Force. You know, fellas, I've not been in the habit of voicing my own opinions in this letter, but this business of graduating from High School between the age of 17 and 18 and then drifting aimlessly for a year before the Army catches up with you — well, it's for the birds. I think Dave did just right. He did the thing that many other thinking young men are doing now. It all adds up that you are through with your hitch at just about the same time — drafted or enlisted — but whats the use of wasting that year between High School and Service.

Enought of that. Daves address is: A/B David G. Vallance, Flight 1049, Sqd. 3706, Lackland AFB, Texas. Here's luck to you Dave.

Here's a change of address for Larry Streeter. He's still at Scott AFB in Illinois but has changed to the 3321 Sqdn, Box J4. Larry is A/3C.

We have discontinuance notices on three men this week. Earl Hart, Roger Benson, and Floyd Dufore. The notice from Earl Hart was on a war department form card and contained no details. I presume that he has finished his training at Fort Riley and is on his way home for Furlough or on his way to another camp for further training.

Roger Benson, also a Fort Riley man, will be starting a 10 day leave starting September 2nd. When that is over he will be one of eight from his company at Riley to be sent to officer candidate school. Twelve from his company are being sent to leadership school, eighteen to the far east, and the rest are going to be on their way to Europe. It seems that Europe is getting a lot of reinforcement these days.

Charles Dufore, who I lost track of last December, was in the PO today and I found that he is leaving for Camp Kilmer this Thursday on his way to Africa. Charles, who is in the Air Force, told me that his brother, Floyd, was due to arrive in Korea about now. Floyd has been with the Marine Air Corps at Cherry Point, North Carolina. We will soon be receiving Air Mail addresses from the both of these men.

I just found out this week that Clare Loomis left the States for Morrocco, Africa the 17th of July. He will be there until December of this year. He says the weather there is somewhat like that at home. I'll bet it isn't as cold there tonight as it is here. I've had the stoker running all day today.

Del Folsom checked in from Japan this week. He writes, "I have finally reached my permanent duty station. I have eighteen months to serve on this ship which is an AKS (electrical stores ship). We carry everything in radio, radar and electrical supplies. It doesn't travel back to the States. That is the reason for rotating the men every eighteen months. We are leaving for Yohosuka, Japan next month where we will stay for three months and then back here for three months. We just rotate every three months between Sasebo and Yokosuka with a sister ship. So it looks as if it will be quite a while befor I get a leave. But it will be a long one when I do get it.

'I have really enjoyed getting the paper. The Servicemen's Letter interests me the most. I haven't gotten a copy for about two months now, but that is because I have been moving around so much. After I left San Diego I spent two weeks at Treasure Island, two weeks coming across on an Aircraft Carrier, and then a week at Yokosuka before coming aboard. By the way does there happen to be anyone from EJ in this vicinity?"

I don't have kownledge of anyone from here in your vicinity, Del, but if any of you men over that way are near Yokosuka or Sasebo be sure to look Del up. His address is: Delbert C. Folsom ENFA, 462 66 67, USS Electron, AKS 27, C/o FPO, San Francisco, California.

Don Trojaneks mother passed on a letter to me which Don wrote to her last week. Here are some paragraphs from his letter: "Here it is 9 o'clock already so I'll try and write a few lines. That's the only way I can get any letters. I have been too busy the last couple of weeks to write many letters and I didn't get many either. — We had to parade yesterday and it sure was a big one, bigger than any of those we were in at Fort Knox. They let us off at 10:30 so it made a nice weekend. I pressed a khaki uniform and picked up a training aid that I have to have this week and slept the rest of the afternoon. I went to the show last night and it was a good one too. I put all my blankets on the bed and went to sleep and never got up until 10:45 this morning. It gets cold down here at night but hot in the day time. — Well, I've finished two weeks of this school, anyway and have learned a lot too. I gave a five minute lecture last week and have to give another five and a fifteen this week. I'm not anything special at that but neither are a lot of the other fellows. I gave a period of instruction on P.T., dismounted drill, and platoon drill so I have five marks so far with the one on neatness in the barracks. I'm not bragging now but I got 100% for the week, the best one in my squad. I put in a lot of work on my stuff to get it too."

Keep up the good work, Don. You will enjoy your life more when you get the wife down there with you. Your good record now will help out then.

Bill Streeter checked in again this week from away out west in Wyoming. His address is: A/3C William A. Streeter, AF 16 416 976, 3467 Stu Sqdn, Box 235, F. E. Warren AFB, Wyoming. He writes, "Guess it's about time I dropped you a line. I should have done so quite a while back but they kept us pretty busy in basic. I'm now in Warren AFB, Cheyenne, Wyoming and it's sure quite a bit cooler here than it is in San Antonio, Texas. For the size of Cheyenne it sure is dead but it's not too large either. I don't ever see how it got to be the capitol of Wyoming.

'I'm here to take automobile maintenance. We have around eight weeks of fundamentals. After that we can have a specialty, where we specialize in one thing; like Engine, which is 15 weeks; Chassis, which is 10 weeks; or Electricity, which is 18 weeks. I sure hope I can specialise in Engines.

'I didn't read the home town paper much when I was home but I sure look forward to getting it now. I never realized how important the Letter could be while I was at home but it sure means a lot to me to know where some of the fellows are at and who is joining. I see that my brother hasn't written you. Tell him to hurry up."

Bill wanted to know if anyone from here was in or around Cheyenne. Not to my knowledge at this time, Bill. The two men at Lowry, Russell Fyan and Louis Addis and Robert Vrondron in Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver are your closest home folks. I believe you have their address. If not then just ask your folks for them in your next letter home and I'll oblige at once.

Here's a letter from Murray Nelson over in Giessen, Germany. "Today I received my first copy of the Herald. Thanks very much for it and the succeeding copies. I should say, the 1st copy I have received overseas. I was delayed at Camp Kilmer for 14 days with troops which is why it took so long to get you the overseas address. It was postmarked 14 Aug. which is good traveling time for a newspaper.

'As you can see, I am stationed here at Giessen, Germany which is about 40 miles north of Frankfurt. I am assigned as an Assistant Adjutant (Legal Officer-Courts & Boards) of this regiment. It is a very good assignment. As soon as I lighted we got involved in a two week maneuver and so I haven't been able to visit the country much except to visit Frankfurt a few times on business. When I get around a bit more I will drop you another line I will say so long for this time and wish you and all of those good people I know the very best."

Murray is with the Regimental Headquarters Company of the 22nd Infantry Regiment. If any of you men get up near Giessen I'll bet Murray will be glad to have a beer with you.

Glen Persons has been expecting to leave for Germany but this last week end he had a 72 hour leave and made it home for a last goodby. He hitch-hiked up here and his two brothers Jim and Sam left Monday by car to take him back to his ship at Norfolk, Virginia. Bon Voyage — Glen.

So Long Men,
"Jake" Snyder

CAR ROLLS OVER NEAR EAST JORDAN

A Detroit girl was injured fatally and three other teen-agers were hurt in an auto mishap two miles north of here, near Ed's Boats, on M-66 at 1:30 a.m., Saturday as reported by Police Chief Harry Simmons.

The Detroit girls had been visiting relatives in Charlevoix. The four were returning to Charleviox from Grayling when the accident occurred, Simmons said.

Class of '32 Hold Reunion

Howard Sommerville acted as toastmaster, introducing the wife or husband; Marie (St. Charles) Waydak read the 1932 prophecy, which brought many laughs.

Sunday afternoon the class held a family picnic at the Tourist park. Twenty eight children came to the picnic.

Honorie (Blair) Wilson brought 200 baloons and they kept everyone entertained. After a bountiful dinner the afternoon was spent visiting and reminiscing.

The next reunion will be held June 30, 1953 with a family potluck picnic. Gwendon Hott is committee chairman for the Detroit area; Gwendolyn (Malpass) Schmitt for Flint and Howard Sommerville for East Jordan.

Deer Hunting Season Approaches

BRIEF SUMMARY OF REGULATIONS GOVERNING

"There ain't no such animal" as a doe permit, the conservation department reports.

Letters arriving in the Lansing office indicate some persons are confused about the season on does.

Game specialists point out that in the northern lower peninsula only, north of M-20, the regular hunting season on bucks will be in effect, November 15-30, and that during the final three days of that season, November 28, 29, and 30, any deer may be taken by any licensed hunter who has not killed a deer up to that time, remain as they were last year, one buck only from November 15-30.

Throughout the southern lower peninsula, one buck only may be taken November 15-30 using a shotgun or 22- caliber rifle; no high-powered rifles will be allowed. This regulation is the same as last year. No fawns or does may be shot here during the final three days.

However, hunters may take any deer during the special Allegan county season, December 1-7, but persons wishing to participate in this season must obtain special permits from the department.

This Bear Got Tagged

For the first time in Michigan, a black bear was live-trapped, subdued wth ether, then tagged, marked and released near Slingleton.

The animal, a 115-pound yearling, was captured on the conservation department's Cusino wildlife experiment station near here.

The trap was fashioned from a section of steel road culvert. Two pounds of ether were injected after the trap was made airtight. When subdued, the animal's ear was tagged and two claws were snipped, so it's movements and habits can be traced by tracks.

Department personnel say never before in Michigan has a bear been tagged and released for study purposes.

August Weather

Although most central and eastern states, including southern Michigan, had the dryest and hottest summer for many years, East Jordan and this immediate area enjoyed one of the most pleasant summers in many years. The temperature was only slightly above normal; and the rainfall, that most eccentual item for good crop conditions, was slightly above average for the months of June and August. Many of our summer visitors expressed their pleasure and appreciation for the delightful weather the local Weather Bureau and the Chamber of Commerce provided.

During August, the average Max. Temp. was 78.8, and the average Min. Temp. was 55.3, for a Mean Temp. of 67.05, which is 2.1 below the 25 year average. This is accounted for by the delightfully cool nights.

The rainfall for the month was 2.61 inches, which is .04 of an inch more than average.

Plan To Pamper Pullets: Payoff In '52 Profits

Michigan hens are making their fall moulting shift, from abundant low-priced eggs to scarce high-priced eggs and the trend continues until January. That makes the early hatched pullets very important birds on any farm, according to J. M. Moore, Michigan State College poultry extension specialist.

Pullets start laying eggs in five to six months but it is not until they are about eight months old that they lay large eggs, and then only if they have proper breeding.

With egg profits in the last half of the year and the pullets the money makers, farmers should take special care that poor management does not cause a drop in egg production, Moore advises.

Pullets have been free, in sunshine, with green grass, bugs, beetles and everything to make them happy. Now they are being shut up in the laying house and farmers should do all possible to overcome the shock. The first thing is a clean laying house, with all the refuse cleaned out, dust washed down, perches and nests treated with a good mite killer

A reception, served by the Susanne Westly Circle of the W. S.C.S., was held immediatly following the service. The serving table was centered by a four tiered wedding cake topped by a minature bride and groom and bouquets of gladioli. Pouring the tea and coffee were Mrs. Joseph VanDeventer, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Arthur Grant, aunt of the bridegroom. Serving the wedding cake were the brides sisters, Mrs. Lee Danforth, Mrs. Richard Wieland and Mrs. Edward Fielstra.

Give Him Time!

They had new neighbors and the wife was much interested in them. In a few days she reported:

"They seem a most devoted couple, John. He kisses her every time he goes out, and even waves kisses to her from the sidewalk. Why don't you do that?"

"Why don't I?" replied John. "Good heavens! I don't even know her yet."

The editor of The Charlevoix County Herald doesn't like to write obituaries for traffic victims.

Last year he and his coleagues on Michigan's 400 daily and weekly newspapers had to write death notices for 1,640 persons who died on the highways and streets of our state.

They had to write about 48,418 people who were hurt in auto accidents — many of them permanently crippled. They had to report on 176,587 traffic accidents in '51.

Those aren't just statistics; they are people. Some of them are friends and relatives of Michigan editors. Some are friends and relatives of yours.

So that they won't have to cover so many funerals of highway victims—and also so they and their readers are spared the grief that every such needlss death brings, Michigan editors are uniting to turn the full force of the press toward arousing their readers and fellow-citizens to the tragedy that rides in our autos.

In regional conferences throughout the state in the next weeks, editors will discuss the solution to the problem.

That solution, simply, is this: Bring all the facts to the public. An informed public opinion can be counted on the push through the necessary changes in attitudes and laws.

Basis of the press program is "a report by Michigan people to Michigan people on how to check mounting highway injuries and deaths."

That's the subtitle of the report by the first Michigan Highway Safety Seminar held on Michigan State Commission called by Fred M. Alger Jr., secretary of state and commission chairman.

Michigan editors are just one group of 100 different organiazations that are joined forces to battle the appalling increase in death, injury and loss that mar our streets and roads.

Dr. John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State College, was seminar chairman. General Motors, the Gas & Oil Association of Michigan, the Michigan Automobile Club and the Michigan Press Association were just a few of the organizations which took an active part in the seminar.

All of these organizations, representing every type of industry, commerce and profession in Michigan, realizes that only the public can make highways safer.

The attitude of Mr. and Mrs. Michigan and their sons and daughters spells the difference between carnage and safety on roads.

Do these incidents sound familiar?

"Can't you get a driver's license for my father. Sure, he's 78 and doesn't see well but he needs to drive to get around. Remember, I worked in the 17th Ward for your boss, the sheriff, last election." So Grandpa gets a license and eventually a headline reads:

Aged Driver Stricken At Wheel; Three Died In Crash.

"Yep. Made it from Tawas to Detroit in three hours! Had it up over 100 plenty of the time, too."

And the headline: Speeding Car Leaves Road; Driver Maimed.

"Yes I guess Junior drives a litle reckless some times. But after all, he's only young once and a kid's got to have some fun."

Hot-Rodders Rate On Highway; Four Cars In Fatal Collision.

"Look, Judge. Can't you fix this ticket for me? After all, I slowed down at the intersection."

Mother Hurt As Car Runs Stop Sign.

"Those darn cops are always trying to stick somebody on a speeding charge. Why don't they go out and catch crooks instead of picking on an honest citizen?"

Speeder Kills School Child.

All those headlines are taken from Michigan newspapers. You've undoubtedly heard enough of the comments to realize that they're accurate, too.

Until Michigan wakes up to the grim toll of highway tragedies, until Michigan realizes it isn't smart, or socially accepted, to violate traffic laws, highway deaths will outnumber those of any battlefield.

It's to wake up his readers, to mobilize public opinion to wiping out unsound and unsafe laws, practices and public acceptance that your editor and his fellow newspapermen are embarking on an intensive campaign to make streets and roads of Michigan safer for you, and his readers.

One of the more decorative aspects of the Lansing scene are the "queens" of various Michigan festivals who call to pay their respects at the Capitol. One of the most charming is Dione Coval who reigned over the Romeo Peach Festival this weekend.

She passes out the information that peach trees, like field crops, have to be rotated. Apple trees are the alternate crop. Peach trees last 8 to 10 years bear after the first 2 years. Apple trees last twice as long which makes rotation a problem.

The annual average crop in Queen Dione's kingdom is 20 to 30,000 bushels.

If you read your whodunits in paper-backed volumes, you've been nicked an extra penny sales tax recently.

Because magazines and newspapers are exempt from Michigan sales tax and because the pocket books are handled by news firms, dealers didn't collect the tax until very recently.

"We don't know why the sudden change," says a Department of Revenue spokesman. "Such books have always been taxable and we assume that the dealers have been absorbing the tax in the past."

Trade associations say they haven't bulletined their members about charging the tax. They think the movement has been spontaneous.

"Our auditors may have spotted the situation in a regular check-up," says the revenue department. "The grapevine usually spreads such news mighty fast."

Whatever the cause, it costs a penny more these days to find out that it was the butler who scragged Sir Geoffrey Peffry Begherry in the manorial mystery.

Plan To Pamper Pullets: Payoff In '52 Profits

and disinfected. It should be ready when pullets start laying.

Deep litter should be used in laying houses now, and it should be six to eight inches deep. Cut straw is better than long straw. Shavings, sawdust and corncobs are satisfactory. Litter should be stirred regularly and any crusted, matted material thrown out.

When the pullets are housed, feed should not be changed. If growing mash is being fed, continue it two to three weeks while pullets become familiar with new surroundings. If a shift to laying mash is planned, farmers can start the laying mash the last two weeks pullets are out on range.

Housed pullets should not be startled as they are wild and shy at sudden motion such as someone entering the pens. Get acquainted with the birds and they will settle down to work.

Plenty of fresh air in housing will prevent birds catching colds but it should be fresh air without drafts. At first, the pullets will need teaching to go on perches, and setting them on perches will help. Birds will have more fresh air and suffer less from crowding when they learn to perch.

Pullet egg-laying is directly benefitted by longer days and poultrymen should start in September to use lights to gradually lengthen the pullets' "days" to 13 hours. This will maintain later high production.

Pullets are the profit-makers from now until January, when old hens go back on full production again, and deserve some pampering, according to Moore.

FOR OUTDOOR FILM FANS

Let's get on with our lesson in outdoor photography—or how to increase your batting average in those snapshots. Just to refresh your memory we mentioned the importance of natural action rather than posed shots in last week's column. And we pointed out the essentials of good lighting when using color film.

Now let's tackle a big word—"composition." How does it apply in outdoor photography? It concerns the light and shadow balance in your picture, and the artistic symmetry, or framing. For instance you may be taking a picture of a fisherman casting from a rowboat. How can you "compose" your setting to make it most effective?

Watch the Background

The background or horizon is very important. Unless it's a silhouette shot an all-sky background is too monotonous. Find a bit of the shoreline with pretty trees growing in an irregular pattern. "Frame" your fisherman in the viewfinder so that his head and shoulders may be outlined against the sky while the rest of the body contrasts against the trees or distant shore. Then release the shutter at a moment that captures the feeling you get from the scene. If it's action you want you must get the angler in the process of casting or battling a fish. If it's the peaceful serenity of a lovely lake that impresses you, snap your fisherman while he's lazily reclining on a boat seat.

Foreground Atmosphere

To give depth to your picture it's often a good idea to frame part of it through a leafy bower, or over the shoulder of someone close to the camera. Don't let this foreground material dominate. It should merely give atmosphere and depth contrast. Professional photographers who go for those "salon" shots often use archways in the foreground to point up some distant scene. You can do the same thing in effect, shooting over the stern of a speeding boat to get the pattern of a swirling wake, climbing a hill and using the corner of a jagged rock in the foreground to shoot your campsite far below, standing on a straight wooded trail, catching your companion in the distance waving, while the trees meet overhead to form a natural arch in the foreground.

Shots like this are memorable keepsakes of wonderful trips, and while they often take a little more time in planning and preparation they're more than worth it in recapturing fun of another vacation in Michigan Outdoors.

Should Have Worked

A YOUNG MAN was being examined as to his qualifications for an important position at Columbia university. "This job," the preliminary interviewer told him, "requires the ability to handle people in a way that will retain their good will, under any circumstances."

Thus briefed, the young man sailed past one examiner after another until he came to the final test—an interview with President Eisenhower himself.

The conversation went along without proving much of anything until suddenly General Ike leaned forward and asked: "Whom do you consider the three greatest men in American history?"

"I didn't quite catch your name, sir," replied the candidate, "but the other two are Washington and Lincoln."

Responsibility Rests With Driver

MUST LOOKOUT FOR A CHILD ANYWHERE

"Mr. Motorist, stop a minute and think whenever you see a child anywhere near the street," warned Lee M. Thurston, Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Motorists must safeguard the lives of children — this is a responsibility that goes along with that all important driver's license.

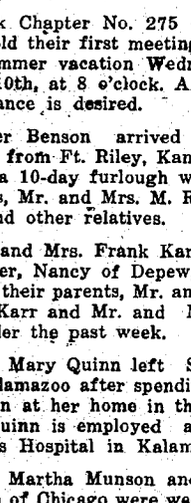

Thurston said that nearly 4,500 children were struck down by automobiles during the last 12 months and 111 died — many were crippled for life.

He pointed out that the schools teach the children many of the rules of safety but the first responsibility rests with the driver.

A child's forgetfulness or carelessness is a poor excuse for a boy or girl being struck down by a ton of steel in the hands of an adult. It will also prove a small comfort in the case of a crippling or fatal accident.

To avoid such tragedies motorists must always "Watch Out For Kids" — especially when driving near schools, playgrounds or whenever cars are parked along the curb.

Dr. Thurston congratulated the Michigan Oil Industry Information Committee for their cooperation in placing the message "Watch Out For Kids" in virtually every service station in the state.

The Servicemen's Letter

Hi Fellas:

We have the address of the third Vallance to enter the service in this emergency this week. The Vallances are the only family from East Jordan that I know of that have three sons in the service at this time. Dave though it over for some time before he decided not to wait for the draft to take him and enlisted in the Air Force. You know, fellas, I've not been in the habit of voicing my own opinions in this letter, but this business of graduating from High School between the age of 17 and 18 and then drifting aimlessly for a year before the Army catches up with you — well, it's for the birds. I think Dave did just right. He did the thing that many other thinking young men are doing now. It all adds up that you are through with your hitch at just about the same time — drafted or enlisted — but whats the use of wasting that year between High School and Service.

Enought of that. Daves address is: A/B David G. Vallance, Flight 1049, Sqd. 3706, Lackland AFB, Texas. Here's luck to you Dave.

Here's a change of address for Larry Streeter. He's still at Scott AFB in Illinois but has changed to the 3321 Sqdn, Box J4. Larry is A/3C.

We have discontinuance notices on three men this week. Earl Hart, Roger Benson, and Floyd Dufore. The notice from Earl Hart was on a war department form card and contained no details. I presume that he has finished his training at Fort Riley and is on his way home for Furlough or on his way to another camp for further training.

Roger Benson, also a Fort Riley man, will be starting a 10 day leave starting September 2nd. When that is over he will be one of eight from his company at Riley to be sent to officer candidate school. Twelve from his company are being sent to leadership school, eighteen to the far east, and the rest are going to be on their way to Europe. It seems that Europe is getting a lot of reinforcement these days.

Charles Dufore, who I lost track of last December, was in the PO today and I found that he is leaving for Camp Kilmer this Thursday on his way to Africa. Charles, who is in the Air Force, told me that his brother, Floyd, was due to arrive in Korea about now. Floyd has been with the Marine Air Corps at Cherry Point, North Carolina. We will soon be receiving Air Mail addresses from the both of these men.

I just found out this week that Clare Loomis left the States for Morrocco, Africa the 17th of July. He will be there until December of this year. He says the weather there is somewhat like that at home. I'll bet it isn't as cold there tonight as it is here. I've had the stoker running all day today.

Del Folsom checked in from Japan this week. He writes, "I have finally reached my permanent duty station. I have eighteen months to serve on this ship which is an AKS (electrical stores ship). We carry everything in radio, radar and electrical supplies. It doesn't travel back to the States. That is the reason for rotating the men every eighteen months. We are leaving for Yohosuka, Japan next month where we will stay for three months and then back here for three months. We just rotate every three months between Sasebo and Yokosuka with a sister ship. So it looks as if it will be quite a while befor I get a leave. But it will be a long one when I do get it.

'I have really enjoyed getting the paper. The Servicemen's Letter interests me the most. I haven't gotten a copy for about two months now, but that is because I have been moving around so much. After I left San Diego I spent two weeks at Treasure Island, two weeks coming across on an Aircraft Carrier, and then a week at Yokosuka before coming aboard. By the way does there happen to be anyone from EJ in this vicinity?"

I don't have kownledge of anyone from here in your vicinity, Del, but if any of you men over that way are near Yokosuka or Sasebo be sure to look Del up. His address is: Delbert C. Folsom ENFA, 462 66 67, USS Electron, AKS 27, C/o FPO, San Francisco, California.

Don Trojaneks mother passed on a letter to me which Don wrote to her last week. Here are some paragraphs from his letter: "Here it is 9 o'clock already so I'll try and write a few lines. That's the only way I can get any letters. I have been too busy the last couple of weeks to write many letters and I didn't get many either. — We had to parade yesterday and it sure was a big one, bigger than any of those we were in at Fort Knox. They let us off at 10:30 so it made a nice weekend. I pressed a khaki uniform and picked up a training aid that I have to have this week and slept the rest of the afternoon. I went to the show last night and it was a good one too. I put all my blankets on the bed and went to sleep and never got up until 10:45 this morning. It gets cold down here at night but hot in the day time. — Well, I've finished two weeks of this school, anyway and have learned a lot too. I gave a five minute lecture last week and have to give another five and a fifteen this week. I'm not anything special at that but neither are a lot of the other fellows. I gave a period of instruction on P.T., dismounted drill, and platoon drill so I have five marks so far with the one on neatness in the barracks. I'm not bragging now but I got 100% for the week, the best one in my squad. I put in a lot of work on my stuff to get it too."

Keep up the good work, Don. You will enjoy your life more when you get the wife down there with you. Your good record now will help out then.

Bill Streeter checked in again this week from away out west in Wyoming. His address is: A/3C William A. Streeter, AF 16 416 976, 3467 Stu Sqdn, Box 235, F. E. Warren AFB, Wyoming. He writes, "Guess it's about time I dropped you a line. I should have done so quite a while back but they kept us pretty busy in basic. I'm now in Warren AFB, Cheyenne, Wyoming and it's sure quite a bit cooler here than it is in San Antonio, Texas. For the size of Cheyenne it sure is dead but it's not too large either. I don't ever see how it got to be the capitol of Wyoming.

'I'm here to take automobile maintenance. We have around eight weeks of fundamentals. After that we can have a specialty, where we specialize in one thing; like Engine, which is 15 weeks; Chassis, which is 10 weeks; or Electricity, which is 18 weeks. I sure hope I can specialise in Engines.

'I didn't read the home town paper much when I was home but I sure look forward to getting it now. I never realized how important the Letter could be while I was at home but it sure means a lot to me to know where some of the fellows are at and who is joining. I see that my brother hasn't written you. Tell him to hurry up."

Bill wanted to know if anyone from here was in or around Cheyenne. Not to my knowledge at this time, Bill. The two men at Lowry, Russell Fyan and Louis Addis and Robert Vrondron in Fitzsimmons Army Hospital in Denver are your closest home folks. I believe you have their address. If not then just ask your folks for them in your next letter home and I'll oblige at once.

Here's a letter from Murray Nelson over in Giessen, Germany. "Today I received my first copy of the Herald. Thanks very much for it and the succeeding copies. I should say, the 1st copy I have received overseas. I was delayed at Camp Kilmer for 14 days with troops which is why it took so long to get you the overseas address. It was postmarked 14 Aug. which is good traveling time for a newspaper.

'As you can see, I am stationed here at Giessen, Germany which is about 40 miles north of Frankfurt. I am assigned as an Assistant Adjutant (Legal Officer-Courts & Boards) of this regiment. It is a very good assignment. As soon as I lighted we got involved in a two week maneuver and so I haven't been able to visit the country much except to visit Frankfurt a few times on business. When I get around a bit more I will drop you another line I will say so long for this time and wish you and all of those good people I know the very best."

Murray is with the Regimental Headquarters Company of the 22nd Infantry Regiment. If any of you men get up near Giessen I'll bet Murray will be glad to have a beer with you.

Glen Persons has been expecting to leave for Germany but this last week end he had a 72 hour leave and made it home for a last goodby. He hitch-hiked up here and his two brothers Jim and Sam left Monday by car to take him back to his ship at Norfolk, Virginia. Bon Voyage — Glen.
